

Weather reports based on behavior of nature in hunter's stories

Text & translation: Anna Pénzešová
Illustrations: Dorota Reguliova

source: zalesactvo.eu

Long-term forecast:

- if the harvest of rowan-tree is high, there's going to be cruel frosts during the winter
- if there's a lot of acorns, a warm winter will come
- if there's lots of anthills during the autumn the more colder winter will come
- if there's a lot of nuts, but you can't find any mushroom it means that in winter will be a lot of snow and strong frosts are coming
- the reach harvest of strawberries portends cold winter
- if birch during the autumn is yellow from the top, it seems that spring will come early
- if birch during the autumn is yellow from below, it seems that spring will come late

Good weather:

- balm-cricket chirp loudly
- mountains and hills seem to be far away
- frogs croak
- you can see lizards in swarms
- bugs lively fly
- the smoke is rising straight to the sky
- the fog is falling down into the ground
- when the crow flies alone
- when it's in the evening clear, cloudless sky
- birds are singing happily

- insects and houseflies are swarming
- spider is making cobweb
- when the sky is red in the morning/ evening
- a lot of dew
- bats are constantly flying
- butterflies are sitting on the trees
- when it's lightning in the evening, but you can't hear the thunder
- the tops of hills clearly shine after the sundown
- the northern/ southeast wind is blowing
- swallows are flying highly in the air

Worse and rainy weather:

- the fog is rising from the woods
- mountains and hills are sublimely near
- insects are very nuisance and bite like delirious
- in the evening the sky is light yellow or deep red
- the smoke goes to the ground
- snails and earthworms appear

- fish jump above the surface
- no dew or a really little dew
- south/ west/ northeast wind
- swallows are flying very low
- sunrise is pale or red, bloody
- you can hear bell's and whistle's sounds even from afar
- dandelion and field bindweed close their flowers

